TRIAL OF GILBERT B. TOWLES. Further Hearing of the Case Postponed Until Monday. When the trial of Gilbert B. Towles, who is under indictment for forgery, was resumed today before Justice Cole in Criminal Court No. 1, the spectators, including prominent business men, attorneys and others, occupied the entire seating capacity of the room. The deep interest manifested in the hearing has continued unabated since the trial was begun.

Mr. Walter C. Clephane of the local bar was the first witness to take the stand this morning for the government. He testified that in his capacity of attorney for Mr. Henry O. Towles, he had several conversations with Gilbert B. Towles. In the presence of the witness the defendant admitted that he had altered a number of notes and explained that after doing so he had noticed the other parties interested of what had fied the other parties interested of what had been done. The witness said he heard the defendant make an appeal to Mr. Zenas C. Robbins, Mr. Gilbert Towles pleading with Mr. Robbins not to prosecute him. According to the witness, the defendant stated that what he had done had been done in the interest of all the parties concerned in the Cettyshurg land transaction. cerned in the Gettysburg land transaction. Mr. C. C. Bryan of 1413 New York avenue was the next witness. He stated, in reply to a query, that he is a cousin of the de-

States Attorney Gould. "Did you sign that note, Mr. Bryan?"
"I did not," replied the witness.
"Did you authorize any one to sign your name to it?" was the next query.
"I did not," was the answer.
The witness denied that he had signed the note for $2,000, as at present drawn. Further, he said to be reveautherized the elter-ther, he said he never authorized the alteration of the note.

According to Mr. Bryan he has at no time been interested to the amount of one cent in the Gettysburg land transaction. He signed certain notes merely as an accommodation to Henry O. Toryles. The witness modation to Henry O. Towles. The witness said that nothwithstanding the fact that he was not financially interested in the Gettyswas not inanciary interested in the Gettys-burg land transaction, he had been made a director of the land company. It was add-ed by Mr. Bryan that he never authorized the alteration of any note, and was amazed when he heard that alterations had been made.

The last witness of the day was Dr. Henry A. Robbins, a son of Mr. Zenas C. Robbins. In substance, the witness testified that the defendant had stated to him that that the defendant had stated to him that he "had to raise the notes in order to save my father's bank shares," referring to shares owned by Mr. Zenas C. Robbins.

At his point the government announced its case closed, with the exception of certain testimony to be given by Mr. J. J. Darlington, who is now away from the city and who will not appear in court until city, and who will not appear in court until next Tuesday morning.

The court directed an adjournment until Monday morning, when the introduction of testimony in behalf of the defendant will

SALE OF BLAINE HOME.

Dupont Circle House to Be Purchased

It is understood that an agreement has been reached which will result in the transfer of what is known as the Blaine house on Dupont Circle, to the ownership of Mr. George W. Westinghouse of Pittsburg. The price that it is generally said will be given for this property is $100,000. For several years past the house has been the home of Mr. and Mrs. Westinghouse, under lease from Mrs. James G. Blaine. It is stated that the term of the lease will expire next November, and that fact is supposed to have had an influence in bringing about this transaction.

The house was built about nineteen years ago for Mr. James G. Blaine, and was occupied by him until he bought the house on Lafayette Square, now the site of a theater.

The residence on Dupont Circle was first leased, furnished, to Mr. L. Z. Leiter, and then Mr. Westinghouse took it. It is one of the large private residences in the city and the rather plain brick walls extending through two stories are finished with a is entirely detached, having a frontage on P street, Massachusetts avenue and Duhospitality has been fully maintained by Mr. and Mrs. Westinghouse, who now become permanently located here.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The Fourth Day at Rockville - The ers this morning. Rev. Thomas J. Packard, ville, offered prayer. Miss Ella Ricker of the Maryland State Normal School read an instructive paper on "How to Interest Children in History." Miss Ricker defined history as being a series of stories of human beings, and stated that the proper time to begin to teach a child history is on its first day at school, and that the proper method is to teach it in the form of a story. She suggested that, in the case of small children, dolls be provided to represent the historical characters, and that they be dressed in the costumes of the times in which the characters lived.

Miss Lelia E Patridge of Philadelphia followed in a talk on "School Government and Child Study." She stated that a thorough knowledge of the child's disposition and character is necessary in order that the teacher may govern and properly teach him. She also maintained that in many cases the secret of good school government is in keeping the children busy.

The first speaker of the afternoon was Miss Sarah E. Richmond of the Maryland State Normal School. Her subject was "Reading in Our Elementary Schools." She held that a child ought not to be given reading that is too hard for him, as it gets him into the habit of stumbling; that read-ing is thought getting, and consequently a child should be made to understand thor-oughly what he reads, and that he should be impressed with the importance of cor-rect pronunciation and distinct articulation, and that the teacher should be the child's

SENTENCED FOR ASSAULT. Sixty Days Each for Two Offenders-

HYATTSVILLE, Md., February 8, 1901. Pleasant Ware and James Ambros, both colored, were yesterday sentenced to the house of correction for sixty days each by Justice Carr, They were charged by L. J. White of this village with attempted assault. The evidence showed that White remonstrated with one of the colored men, who was about to strike his dog, where-upon they both attempted to assault him, one of them striking at him with an ax. one of them striking at him with an ax.

William Wright of Bladensburg was arraigned before Justice Carr yesterday on the charge of assault with intent to kill. The warrant was sworn out by the boy's father, who stated that William had threatened to kill him several times, and yesterday endeavored to cut him with a knife. As this was his second appearance before the justice for the same offense, he was sent to the farm for three years.

Mr. C. A. M. Wells, who was taken to a hospital in Washington for an operation for appendicitis, is slowly recovering.

old-time hard—sense teach us to "look before we leap?" Not for a fire engine or truck only, but for anything dangerous. Do we after crossing a bridge stop and look to see whether it was strong enough for us to cross on? Do we after crossing a steam railroad track, while driving or walking in the country, stop and look to see if the locmotive is approaching? Is this period of wonderful and successive inventions, automobiles, flying machines, wireless telegraphy, communicating with other planets, etc., exhausting this ordinary common sense of ours? Commissioner Macfarland states that he thinks it might be necessary to return to the stopping of street cars on the near side of the street, as formerly. Now, how many more fatal accidents are required before it will become a positive rule? fore it will become a positive rule? Not only when fire engines or trucks are running to fires, but in every case, for common sense tells us it would be nearly impossible for motormen on street cars to look for fire engines at every crossing. look for fire engines at every crossing. Street cars generally stop at every corner, and if the near side was the stopping point the motormen would get accustomed and habitually lessen their speed on approaching that point.
